

Conditional Halves

- Cut cards
- Students to correctly match conditional clauses to each other.

If I were you	I would study harder for the exam.
If he were rich	He would buy a new house and a Ferrari.
My brother would travel all over the world	If he owned a private jet.
If they lost the game,	They would be eliminated from the championship.
If I went to the moon	I would need a spacesuit to survive.
She would go to the new restaurant downtown	If she could get a reservation.
We could go to the concert	If we had bought tickets.
I would buy a great present for my father	If I had enough money.

Conditional Chains

- Students to choose one full conditional from above, for example “If I were you, I would study harder for the exam.”
- From this conditional, they must take it in turns to add another conditional following from the last. For example:
 - If I were you, I would study harder for the exam.
 - If I studied harder for the exam, I would pass it.
 - If I passed the exam, I would get into a good University.
 - If I got into a good University, I would learn a lot.
 - ...And so on.
- This activity could be completed in teams (with perhaps the longest chain or first to finish as the winner) in order to create a more competitive atmosphere, or it could be conducted as a memory game with students having to remember each of their partner’s conditionals before continuing the chain.
