I won't buy a new car...	...unless you pay for a subscription.
Let's go to that new restaurant...	...unless the weather is cold.

ROLE-PLAYS

Football/Soccer Team:

Team Owner You think this technology is fantastic – the sooner you adopt Google Glass, the sooner you will start to win more games. Think of the advertising revenue you will gain from the added popularity!	Coach You can see how the technology would benefit the team, and you want to win games, but you share your player's concerns. Winning games and having the best team is more important to you than money, regardless of the technology involved.	Player You don't want to become a robot – you love playing football at a competitive level using your own skill and teamwork. You think this technology will destroy the game by removing players from the fast decision-making they need to do.

Restaurant & Bar:

Restaurant Owner You want your waiters to wear Google Glass. The augmented reality software will allow them to see which tables need service - to order food, pay the bill or just refill their drinks, for example. Additionally, the use of voice recognition and recording means they won't have to write anything down or remember it. So much more efficient!	Consumer Rights Advocate If all of the waiters wear Google Glass or similar technology, people's privacy will be compromised. Everybody has the right to privacy in a social setting. Waiters could record video and audio of customers and post it online, or use the data to exploit them. Google Glass could record credit card numbers and signatures when paying the bill. This is obviously a bad idea.	Waiter Google Glass will definitely make your job easier, but if people refuse to come to the restaurant because they are afraid of losing their privacy, you won't have a job! There must be a way to ensure that privacy is maintained while using new technology like this. You don't want to use Google Glass unless your job is safe!
